

This past September was published as ISO UNE, the third part (23081-3) of standards dedicated to Metadata for records , which present a method of self-assessment of readiness of organizations against ISO 23081-1 and ISO 23081-2.

This is a different standard. It has a few pages that explain how is the self-assessment method, but the important thing is the accompanied worksheet , which is used to put the method into practice .

If an organization wants to know their readiness against ISO 23081 standards, only is needed answering questions in the first tab following the suggested numerical scale ,

and will automatically get two reports
that indicate how
the organization
is
with respect to metadata

one for the framework
and the other for the system

I've used it for a client. Very useful!
